Energy Efficient HVAC Systems

'Sustainability' is at the forefront of social and industrial thinking. It is about meeting the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs. HVAC systems are considerable users of energy in buildings. Historically, the emphasis in design has been on minimising the initial cost with little regard for the long term cost impacting environment, maintenance and life cycle. A different approach needs to be taken. Based on Develop and Manage Sustainable Energy Practices from the Competitive Manufacturing Training Package, Participants will receive a nationally-recognised 'Statement of Attainment'.

Contact: Laura Steadman

What will I learn? At the end of this session you will be able to:

- Know the importance and consequences of energy efficiency
- Be familiarised with the Australian regulatory requirements including the Building Code of Australia (BCA)
- Identify the costs and benefits to those in the supply chain of energy efficiency
- Achieve optimal energy efficiency
- Troubleshoot to maximise energy savings
- Investigate alternative sources of energy
- Design and match the technology to the design brief
- Integrate systems from design intentions to operation and maintenance
- Understand seasonal re-commissioning and maintenance scheduling documentation from the manufacturers instructions to maintenance schedules
